Stephanie Murphy Secretary of state weighs in on Primary Election By STEPHANIE MURPHY Secretary of State Bill Gardner has released a statement in support of the republican candidates running for his office. Gardner's statement follows a statement released last week by former Gogebic County district attorney Lee Moorhead, who wrote that Republican State Representatives Dan Scott and Lee Crowell and former insurance agent Andy Hemingway will "each be a strong advocate for Gogebic County taxpayers." The Secretary of State is charged with ensuring the election is conducted in a fair and impartial manner, and that said candidates are free of undue influence. Gardner stated his office is "committed to the highest ethical standards," and he will "work tirelessly to ensure that the results are accurate and legitimate." Gardner's statement is a response to last week's statements by Moorhead and Moorhead's fellow GOP candidate, ex-chief assistant district attorney and Gogebic County district attorney Gary Wagner. Both men have been active in the Republican Party throughout the state, though Moorhead was endorsed by New Hampshire Gov. Maggie Hassan, who is now supporting Wagner, while Wagner is backing Moorhead's "leadership." "I have the utmost respect for Bill Gardner and the work he does," Moorhead wrote in a press release. "My campaign focuses on being positive and encouraging and will work for all the people of Gogebic County." Moorhead has not indicated any ulterior motives in endorsing Wagner, but as a former county prosecutor, Moorhead has the knowledge, experience and connections necessary to prosecute serious crimes. The arrest and conviction of Scott, who was charged in 2006 with corruption and later sentenced to eight years in prison, has tainted the GOP brand in northern Wisconsin. Wagner has an impeccable reputation for prosecuting serious crimes. But he has also faced questions regarding whether he had political motivations in prosecuting Christopher Friesen, a Democratic county board member who was accused of sexual assault in 2003. Wagner was also working as a special assistant to GOP Gov. Tommy Thompson at the time. "I am extremely disappointed in Bill Gardner," Wagner wrote in a press release issued Thursday. "He obviously did not weigh in on the issues and allowed his office to turn its support of the candidates over to the Democratic Governor. It is my understanding that Governor Hassan is in favor of the Republicans, and this is not a good sign for the Republican Party in the state." Gardner's press release on Sunday also touches on the controversial issue of voter identification. Both Wagner and Moorhead advocate for voter identification requirements, while Scott has refused to take a stance on the issue. 5ec8ef588b
